

Amanda Heyworth

Originally trained as an accountant, Amanda worked in the US technology sector, as an investment banker and as an economist in the Federal Treasury. She later became a pioneer in the Australian venture capital industry working for a decade as CEO of an early-stage fund specialising in technology start-ups. She has advised numerous governments on technology and innovation.

Amanda is a professional company director with board experience spanning the property, technology, finance and government sectors, ranging from startups through to ASX200. Amanda currently is Chair of the National Archives of Australia Advisory Council, Deputy Chair of AU Ventures Group and serves on the board of Believe Housing Ltd and the Investment Committee of Corval Partners Ltd.